Fort Street Owners Want Wider Track.

PETITION FOR IMPROVEMENT

C. W. Booth Complains of the Attitude of the Board of Public Works.

C. W. Booth, one of the property owners interested, is not pleased with the official attitude towards the widening of Fort street.

"I have talked with Superintendent McCandless on this matter," said he last evening, "and got small satisfaction. One reason why nothing has been done, says McCandless, is that the property owners hold the land too dear. How does he know that? The heavy owners are willing to donate land and the small ones, as they tell me, have not been asked. Isn't the Superintendent taking too much for granted?"

"Mr. McCandless has said that we ought to organize a syndicate and widen Fort street at our own expense. I can't see the point. The Government would get enough out of the Fort street property in the way of increased taxation, due to the widening process, to pay it for its trouble. I don't know why, if other property owners can get streets improved at public expense, those on Fort street should be compelled to go down into their pockets to find the means for the same work."

Mr. Booth showed the following petition for widening which, he says, contains the names of every, or nearly every, owner of frontage on the street affected, as well as the names of other taxpayers:

To the Legislature of the Territory of Hawaii: Your petitioners respectfully represent that the extension of Fort street above School street, in Honolulu, was provided for by an Act of the Legislature of the session of 1898, and again provided for in the session of 1899.

That the extension of the said street, according to the intention of the Legislature, would have greatly benefited a great number of owners of small businesses, and would have opened up a considerable number of lots, and thereby adding largely to the taxable valuation of the property of the City of Honolulu.

That said extension will be a great public improvement to the City of Honolulu, inasmuch as Fort street, the principal business street of the City, is entirely too short for business requirements.

That inasmuch as the Executive has apparently refused to comply with the wishes of the Legislature as expressed in said Act, your petitioners pray that a suitable sum be appropriated for the extension of said Fort street above School street, the work on same to begin forthwith.

MAKING GOOD COFFEE.

This is the Novel Receipt Given by One Woman.

The Cubans made a delicious coffee by putting the freshly parched and ground bean into a flannel bag fastened to the top of an earthen jar, and allowing cold water to slowly filter through. The liquid is then heated in a tightly sealed vessel. This method is well worth a trial. A most novel recipe for coffee is given by a young woman whose friends all unite in pronouncing her beverage perfection.

"I can make good coffee by anybody's recipe," she says, "if I have plenty of coffee to make it with, but my own particular method I stumbled on through indolence and an irreverent disregard of sacred tradition. I make it exactly as I do tea, rinsing a china pot with boiling water and putting into it a liberal supply of freshly ground berries. I add to this enough boiling water to thoroughly saturate the grounds and let it stand for five or ten minutes. I then add required amount of boiling water, stir it up from the bottom, and it is ready to serve. Coffee can be ground much coarser for this method than for the French coffee pot, and it is, therefore, always much clearer."

Coffee lovers usually view my performances with much agitation, until they have tasted the finished product, whereupon they marvel greatly. I think I can claim to be the least fussy of coffee fiends. Besides having plenty of good, freshly-ground coffee, there is but one other essential, a perfectly light and absolutely clean vessel to make it in, and a china pot is always the best and safest. For black coffee the cheaper South American varieties have an acid taste which many people like, but those who use cream usually find this acid property rather objectionable. Where "frills" are desirable a delicious flavor may be given to coffee by rubbing lumps of loaf sugar over orange or lemon rind. There is a great difference in the flavor of orange peel, and thick skins are usually more spicy. One lump of sugar rubbed on all sides will absorb considerable of the orange tang.

Apropos of frills, there is a new one for tea, which seems to be very little known. A slice of lime added to the afternoon cup of tea gives a decided and very piquant flavor to that refreshing drink. Those who approve of the slice of lemon would do well to put the lime to the test.

KING EDWARD AS A MAN WHO KNOWS THINGS.

The new King is the most experienced man of the world that has ever ascended a throne. He has seen life in every capital, he has met every celebrity of his time, he has for long been in touch with almost every class of the community, and he knows the intimate history of his own period as no other man does. He has visited the "thieves' kitchens," the "doss houses" and the opium dens in the East End; he has been conducted through the chief manufacturing of the country, he has occupied the chair at hundreds of meetings, his is the most familiar face at the theater, at the opera and at the racetrack; he has been to every exhibition of importance and almost every work of art with any serious pretensions to merit has been submitted to him for his approval. He is popular, he is an excellent speaker, he has tact and humor, his memory is phenomenal and he has been trained by the late Queen to spare neither himself nor any trouble in the exercise of his public duties.—London Truth.

TO ABOLISH THE TRAM FRANCHISE

Attorney General is Instructed to Draw up the Papers at Once.

The day of filthy street cars, creeping along at a snail's pace, is on the ebb. The courts will take up the matter looking towards the cancellation of the Hawaiian Tramway Company's franchise, at the instigation of the Territorial government, and though Pain may be able to control his mules and his drivers, and laugh at the public, who are compelled to ride in the dirty cars, it is evident that he has awakened the serious displeasure of the powers that be.

Attorney General Dole has been requested to prepare the necessary papers and place the matter before the courts in the strongest possible light. This will probably be done before the close of the week, and the beginning of the end is in sight.

Last week Pain paid Theresa Wilcox's milk bill, amounting to over $305, and from this fact it is argued that he will be under the protecting wing of the home rulers. At any rate, the contest will be a lively one.

The balance of the business transacted by the Governor's Council was of little import.

Mr. Cooper read the comparative statement by the auditor of expenses for the months of January and February of 1900 and 1901. Mr. Lansing read an application from Hoffschlaeger & Co., asking for a dealers' license, in lieu of their wholesale liquor license, which expires in a short time. Action was deferred until the matter can be looked into.

The application of Hackfeld & Co. for a wholesale liquor license at Lahaina was refused.

Mr. Cooper brought up the question of the number of days the Legislature will sit. It was the impression of the meeting that the law was quite plain on this point, and that all days should be counted, except Sundays and holidays.
